THE LEFFERTS-HAUGHWOUT FAMILY.

BY LEFFERD M. A. HAUGHWOUT.

The surnames Lefferts and Haughwout, although never actually compounded, are descriptive of collateral branches of one and the same family. This family owes its diversity of appellation to the well known Dutch custom of sometimes allowing the family surname to fall into disuse, through preference for the paternal Christian name which usually accompanied it. Thus, Jacobus, son of Leffert, signs formal documents as "Jacobus Lefferts Haughwout," but more informally he is known simply as "Jacobus Lefferts." In the next generation the proper surname is discontinued altogether, and Leffertse or Lefferts becomes permanently established in its place.*

In this instance "Lefferts" became so common as a Christian name, and there were, in Dutch parlance, so many Leffert's sons, that "Lefferts" or "Leffertson," came to be looked upon as descriptive of the whole family, or at least of such branches of it as continued to reside near the old homestead at Flatbush. Other branches however, especially those which removed to more distant parts, have retained the surname Haughwout, while Leffert or Lefferd is still used as a Christian name.

The name Haughwout is an anglicized form of Hoogwout (High-wood), and is undoubtedly derived from the ancient town of that name, in the province of North Holland.

The earliest historical mention of this town relates, that on Jan. 12, 1256, "William of Holland, Emperor of Germany, was killed near Hoochwood in West Friesland." But not until nearly two centuries later does the name appear as a family surname. According to the "Biographisch Woordenboek der Nederlanden," we have the following account: "Everard van Hoogwoud, lord of Hoogwoude,† a castle in Kennemerland, was a natural son of Duke William of Bavaria, Count of Holland." He was of the party supporting Lady Jacqueline, by whom he was struck knight in the second battle of Alphen. He was still living in 1451, and upon his death, was buried before the high altar in the Groote Kerk at the Hague. By his first wife he left a son Anthony van Hoogwoud, a knight in Dordrecht, who was survived by six children. Sometime in the following century there was a Pieter Jacobus van Hoogwout in Ousterhout; and in 1592, Pieter Janse van Hoogwout, a descendant, removed from thence and settled in Zaandam. Descendants of this family are still found in various parts of Holland, and one of them, Gerrit Egbert Hoogwout, is now residing in this country.

In 1657, "Cornelius Claeszoon Hoogwout of Hoogwout, son of Claes Corneliuszoon Hoogwout," was a schepen, and in 1666, burgemeester of Hoorn. In 1665, he was concerned in certain negotiations between William III., and his nobles.*

† See Blok's History of the Netherlands, Vol. II.

In 1660, Pieter Janse† Hoogwout, ancestor of the American families of Lefferts and Haughwout, emigrated from Holland to New Amsterdam, with his wife Femmetie Hermanse, and two sons Leffert Pieterse and Pieter Pieterse. He removed to Flatbush, L. I., where he died soon after. In Oct. 1662, "Femmetie Hermanse, widow of Pieter Janse of Flatbush, was married to Pieter Jacobse van Nortwyck, and at her petition, Pieter Lott and Jan Seubern were appointed guardians of her two sons by her former husband."

There is no evidence whatever that Pieter Janse himself came from the town of Hoogwout, although the late Mr. Teunis G. Bergen so describes him (endeavouring probably to account for the surname Haughwout). It is quite clear, however, that he came directly to this country from the province of Dremthe, which is east of Hoogwout, beyond the Zuyder Zee. The evidence for this is as follows: The emigration from Holland took place, as will appear later, in 1660; and accordingly we find among the passengers of the ship Spotted Cow from Amsterdam in 1660, a "Pieter Janse from Dremthe," shoemaker by trade, with his wife and four children.‡ And in the following year, 1661, a Pieter Janse, described as a shoemaker, purchased a house and lot from Cornelius Janse Bougert, in the town of Flatbush.§

These two descriptions undoubtedly refer to Pieter Janse Haughwout, for the name Pieter Janse does not reappear on the passenger lists of this immediate period, nor does there seem to have been any other Pieter Janse in Flatbush who answers to the above description.

From the foregoing considerations it is certain that Haughwout was used as a family surname prior to the emigration from Holland;|| and that further efforts for tracing a more remote ancestry must be directed to a careful investigation of the Hoogwout or Van Hoogwout family of that country. A failure to recognize these facts greatly limited Mr. Bergen in his valuable work upon the "Lefferts' Family."

Mr. Bergen also prefixes a van to the surname, e. g., "Leffert Pieterse van Haughwout," but upon what authority, the present writer has been unable to discover. This was the original form of the name, but it nowhere appears in connection with the family in this country. The van was probably dropped before leaving Holland, after the surname had become fixed by long usage. Originally it referred to the town of Hoogwout, but after the family had lived elsewhere for several generations, its local significance was lost, and it was dropped in consequence. This was actually the case with the Hoogwout family of Zaandam (supra).

§ Early Settlers of Kings County.

|| NOTE:—Its uses in this country cannot be explained upon any other supposition. There is no record that Pieter Janse ever resided in Hoogwout; but if he did, and by so doing acquired his surname, we should find a "van" prefixed. But this not the case.

There does not appear to have been any further emigration of the Haughwout family to this country; although it is worthy of note that a petition to the Governor and Council by the inhabitants of Gouwanus, dated May, 1664, contains the names "Leffer Jansen" and his sons(?) "Jan Leffersen" and "Barent Leffersen."* It is barely possible that Leffer Jansen was a relative of Pieter Janse Haughwout, as the name Leffert is elsewhere peculiar to this family. On April 8, 1700, there was a petition filed by Martinus Lamberse for a speedy trial, under a true bill, for the murder of Hester, wife of Marcus Leffert of New York, daughter of Paulus Richard.† Nothing further is known of these Lefferts.

From the fact that the sons of Pieter Janse Haughwout were placed under guardians upon their father's death, and that they do not appear upon the records until about fourteen years thereafter, it is probable that they were quite young when they came to this country. Pieter Pieterse,‡ the younger of the two, married Neeltje Bakker and removed to Staten Island, where he appears on the tax list, about 1678, as Pieter Haughwout. This is the earliest record of the use of the surname in this country. His descendants§ have invariably retained it, of whom are the late Eder Vreeland Haughwout, a prominent merchant of this city, and Dr. John Hillyer Haughwout of St. Nicholas Ave. It is worth noting that "Leffert" is never used as a Christian name in this branch of the family. Leffert Pieterse, the elder son of Pieter Janse Haughwout, first appears on the tax list of 1675, at Flatbush. In 1687, he took the oath of allegiance to the English Government, and affirmed a residence in this country of twenty-seven years.|| This is our authority for placing the emigration in 1660. (For a further account of Leffert Pieterse Haughwout, see the Lefferts' Genealogy). His name is preserved only as Leffert Pieterse.

Among the sons of the foregoing, there appears considerable variation in the use of surnames. According to the prevalent usage their full surname would have been Lefferts Haughwout; and accordingly in the deeds of 1719 and 1723, Jacobus signs himself Jacobus Lefferts Haughwout.¶ In 1715, his name appears on the roll of the Flatbush militia as Jacob Haughwout, and in other places as Jacobus Lefferts. His descendants have used Lefferts for their surname. Isaac and Pieter also appear on the militia roll as Isaac and Pieter Haughwout, but elsewhere they use Lefferts, as do their descendants.

Auke, the eldest son, removed to Monmouth Co., N. J., and his name appears with about equal frequency as Leffertsen and Haughwout.†† Auke however, transmitted the surname Haugh-wout at least to a part of his descendants. His son Leffert appears on the tax list about 1735, as Leffert Haughwout; and his grandson Leffert, son of Peter, is probably the Lefferd Haughwout who settled in Union Co., Penn., in 1776.* The descendants of this Lefferd Haughwout of Pennsylvania, have invariably retained the proper surname, while Lefferd appears as a Christian name in every generation.

Jan, the third son of Leffert Pieterse, settled near Jericho, L. I.,† and he seems to have used the surname Haughwout exclusively. His son Leffert lived in the town of Hempstead, where he was prominent for over half a century, until his death, circ. 1790. He invariably signed his name Leffert Haughwout;‡ yet his descendants, who adopted Lefferts for their surname, carved "Leffert Lefferts" upon his tombstone in St. George's Church-yard, Hempstead. It is doubtful if he was ever known by that name.

So much confusion has existed in the minds of many in regard to the exact relation of the Lefferts and Haughwout families, that it was thought well to put these facts into such concrete shape as to show conclusively that they are in reality branches of one and the same family.

NOTE: Since writing the above, an old document has been found which refers to Pieter Janse, the ancestor of this family, as "Peter Haughewout." The author of this reference is Abigail Lefferts Stuart-Smyth, daughter to Leffert Haughwout of Hempstead (1712-1795).

THE LEFFERTS-HAUGHWOUT FAMILY.

THE HAUGHWOUT * BRANCHES.

BY LEFFERD M. A. HAUGHWOUT.

In a previous issue of this magazine, the writer endeavored to show how the surnames "Haughwout" and "Lefferts" are variously used by the descendants of Pieter Janse Haughwout. The present article purposes to trace, as far as possible, such branches of this family as have not already been recorded in the Lefferts Genealogy. With but one exception these branches still bear the Haughwout surname.

No pretense of completeness is made in this account. Several well-known Haughwout families have defied the writer's best efforts to connect them with the parent stem, although their repeated use of "Lefferd" as a Christian name would indicate that they are branches of this family.

The record of the descendants of John, fifth issue of Leffert Pieterse Haughwout, has been furnished by Miss Mary Amelia Hart of Poughkeepsie. It is practically a copy of an old family record, which was begun by Leffert Haughwout (1712-1795), of Hempstead, L. I., and which has been continued by his descendants until the present day.

1 PETER JANSE' HAUGHWOUT, b. in Holland; d. 1661-2; m. Femmetie Hermanse. ERRATA. -

Through an unfortunate misunderstanding, the first part of this genealogy (July number) was printed without proof corrections. The following errata will correct the more important errors, and supply some omissions.

Anke (4), should read Auke.

Jan Lefford (5) resided at Foster's Meadows in 1726. (See Hempstead Records.)

The query after Ida Suydam, belongs to Pieter (9).

For Lefferd (7), (see Annals of Buffalo Valley, p. 148).

The descendants of Lefferd Haughwout (10), or Hague-wout, are known as "Lefferts;" they have erroneously inscribed his tombstone "Leffert Lefferts," although his father's name was John.

Abigail (12) had issue: John Covert, bap. Jan. 25, 1752. After Abigail (12) should be inserted Harmon (12A) as follows:

12A HARMON¹ LEFFERTS (Jan Lefford,¹ Leffert Pieterse,¹ Pieter Janse¹), b. Nov. 8, 1730; m. Mary ———. Residence, Coldspring. Issue:

25A Adam Lefferts,¹ bap. May 9, 1759, Oyster Bay.

25B James Lefferts, bap. May 9, 1759, Oyster Bay.

25C Titus Lefferts, bap. June 27, 1772, Oyster Bay.

Margaret Lefferts, bap. June 27, 1772, Oyster Bay.

John Lefferts, bap. June 27, 1772, Oyster Bay.

Samuel Lefferts, bap. June 27, 1772, Oyster Bay.

Mary Lefferts, bap. June 27, 1772, Oyster Bay.

Henry Lefferts, bap. June 27, 1772, Oyster Bay.

NOTE.—In this genealogy, the author has endeavoured to use the surname Haughwout only where its use is supported by documentary, or other unquestioned evidence.
